

Nurses professional socialization challenges

Zahra Sardari¹, Samira Shahbazzadegan²

¹ MSc in Nursing, Nursing and Midwifery school -Ardabil University of Medical Science, Ardabil, Iran. Email: oloompezeshkitabriz@gmail.com

²Assistant Prof of Reproductive health, Nursing and midwifery school -Ardabil University of medical sciences, Ardabil, Iran .Email: samirashahbazzadegan2000@yahoo.com

Introduction: The socialization is process that flows across the human life. This phenomenon in the nursing profession begins with formal training programs and is continuing with the arrival of individual to workplaces. Socialization is the process of learning the rules, skills and characteristics of a group in the society. Lack of socialization leads to decrease nurses service quality, reduce job satisfaction, burnout, job stress, reduce productivity and lack of access to professional identity. This study was conducted amid to investigate professional social challenges of the nurses.

Methods: In this review study, a wide range of key words such as professional socialization, Nurses and social challenges were used. Search in data base resulted in 56 paper and then 21 studies were selected to review.

Results: The results of this study showed that many factors are involved in nurses professional socialization. The main obstacles factors of nurses socialization is professional, social and economic factors.

Conclusion: This study revealed that the agents of professional, economic and social a factors affect the socialization of nurses and therefore, officials should be consider them in relation to remove of these obstacles.

Keywords: Socialization, Nurses, Social Challenges, professional